

Abstract of the Disclosure

[0039] A method and apparatus for constraining a substrate in-plane is provided. A substrate retainer having a retainer body and contact surface configured to engage a portion of a back side of a substrate, and a flexure coupled to the retainer body and configured to restrict one or more degrees of movement of a substrate with respect to the substrate retainer.